

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

In addition to the residual, ongoing heavy showers overnight, the daily rise in temperature will once again trigger slow-moving heavy showers and thunderstorms. However, unlike preceding days the area affected is expected to gradually recede southwards and eastwards through the day. Once again, 15-25 mm, and very locally in excess of 30 mm could fall within an hour, bringing the risk of flooding, especially if across urban areas.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 10:00 on Fri, 17th Jun 2016 until 22:00 on Fri, 17th Jun 2016

Heavy showers are expected to redevelop on Friday, organising into slow-moving bands in places, and leading to some torrential downpours. As on preceding days some locations will miss these downpours, but please be aware of possible localised flooding and disruption to travel where they do occur. Lightning could be an additional hazard.
